Gynecology and Women health is referred to the health problems face a wide variety of challenges: managing the care of patients of all ages that are specific to women anatomy. It relates to the unique issues which includes pregnancy, menopause, and conditions of the female organs. Women health also includes medical situations in which women face problems not directly related to their biology but due to gender-differentiated access to medical treatment. Women's health issues have attained higher international perceptibility in the recent decades. Such as United States has a higher ratio of maternal deaths than at least 40 other countries, even though it spends more money per capita for maternity care than any other. Maternal deaths must be reviewed to make motherhood safer. The status of maternal deaths in the United States was part of a larger report on the global, regional, and national levels and causes of maternal mortality from 1990-2013. The findings suggest that only 16 countries will achieve a target of a 75% reduction in the maternal mortality ratio (or number of maternal deaths per 100,000 live births) by 2016.
